Fall 2011

Hurricane Irene Impacts the OBX

On August 28 and 29, Hurricane Irene rolled through the Outer Banks leaving flooding on the northern beaches and parts of Hatteras Island not seen in decades. Hardest hit were the low lying sound side areas. Vacation rental properties north of Whalebone Junction in Nags Head had little or no flooding as this storm's strongest winds pushed the ocean water out to sea. Top winds at the end of the Duck Pier were measured at 75 knots. For more pictures and a video on Hurricane Irene you can call us or go to: www.scottrealtyobx.com/hurricane_irene.

OBX Real Estate Market Update

Improving market conditions were hampered by Hurricane Irene. Before the storm, sales transactions were up almost 4% over the same period of time in 2010. Since the storm sales transactions are down. This "hurricane effect" is fairly common when the Outer Banks suffers a direct hit from a hurricane but sales typically return to normal within six months. Hopefully by January or February we will again see seasonally adjusted increases in the number of Outer Banks sales. If you need an estimate of value for your OBX property, please call us. For a monthly report on the local real estate market you can call us or go to: www.scottrealtyobx.com/market_update.

Nags Head Sound Trail

Hike the OBX Maritime Forests

Winter is the best time of year to explore the maritime forests on the sound side of the Outer Banks. Here you can get out of the cold winter winds whipping off the ocean and view the unique flora and fauna of this coastal environment. Nags Head, Kill Devil Hills and Kitty Hawk combined have miles and miles of trails along the sound side. Contact Scott Team Realty for directions to these trail heads.

Receive Best OBX Values Information

In our daily course of business we come across some great values. They don't have to be our listings to get our attention. Sometimes properties are listed incorrectly or slip under the radar for some other reason. When we see a great OBX value we want you to know about it regardless of the listing agency. To receive our best values via email go here: <http://eepurl.com/ePXrA> and the information will be sent directly to your email box.

Thinking of Renovating?

The decision to complete an addition or even just upgrade a bathroom can be difficult. How much this improvement will increase the value of the property is often an important part of the decision making process. If you want to get an idea of the return you might get on your renovations contact Scott Team Realty. Each year the National Association of Realtors puts out a report on how improvements are valued by buyers. We'd be happy to provide you with the national statistics as well as a good local perspective. Contact Scott Team Realty for more information.

New Pea Island Inlet

Hurricane Irene changed the geography of Hatteras Island. When the sound waters rose, the ocean side dunes acted like a dam to the sound waters. In two places where the dunes were high the water broke through and created new channels into the ocean. One of these channels was filled shortly after the storm and the other remains open today. You can see this new inlet in the video at the bottom of this web page: www.scottrealtyobx.com/hurricane_irene. A bridge was built over this new inlet to provide locals and visitors access to Hatteras Island villages.
